His Last Santa

Santa Claus will visit 3-year-old Nubbin Hoffman, above, of Cheyenne, Wyo., this year on Nov. 19 because the child is not expected to be alive when Christmas Day rolls around. "Nubbin," who already has been showered with gifts from friends, is suffering from a bladder ailment which doctors say will prove fatal before Dec. 25.

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

THIS LOOKS LIKE the big moment for which we've been waiting—Gen. Eisenhower's all-out drive to crack the formidable Rhine defenses and administer the coup de grace.

It shouldn't be long now—if the weather lets the Allies get ahead with the job—before we have a good idea of how much steel is left in the Nazi backbone.

German Field Marshal Von Rundstedt may have half a million men with which to meet the terrific weight being hurled against his 430-mile battle-line that stands between us and victory. If that's a correct estimate it means the Germans are outnumbered by probably five to one—maybe more. The Allies are supreme in the air and their striking power in all other categories is superior.

We should have a false picture, however, if we left it there. The Nazis are banking heavily on the strength of their Rhineland defenses to impede the Allied drive. The deeply fortified area between the Allies and the Rhine presents a great barrier, and the wide, swift river itself is a terrific obstacle.

Let's not underestimate the task facing the gallant boys who at this moment are driving through knee-deep mud, under rain and sleet straight into the enemy fire. They likely to be a cruel route through that Rhineland valley which in times of peace is so quiet and lovely. Success won't be cheap.

We back here on the home front should remember this. The least we can do is jump in and provide the troops with the wherewithal to fight.

Well now, what can we look for in the way of Allied tactics? Gen. Ike has been working the shrewd

ORMOC RIDGE IS DOMINATED BY AMERICANS

Limon, Key to Strategic Island Road, Within Grasp of Yanks

BY C. YATES McDANIEL
GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Nov. 17.—Stubbornly defended, shell blasted Limon, key to the Ormoc road, was within grasp of weather beaten units of the 24th U. S. division today as they took virtual control of dominating Breakneck ridge.

Fred Hampton, Associated Press war correspondent with the 24th, reported American units coming down the slopes of Breakneck ridge from the west had advanced to within 1,000 yards of the Ormoc valley floor.

Other American units on the east were held up by Japanese strongly entrenched in ravines and gullies.

Another 24th division force is behind the Japanese of the Ormoc road, two and a half miles south of Limon, but has not been able to cut the road entirely because of heavy Japanese concentrations on a hillside commanding the highway. The Japanese have not been able to use the road either, because the Americans are keeping it under continual mortar and machine gun fire.

With American long-range artillery hammering the 26-mile corridor which remains to the Japanese, and American air fighters ranging the skies overhead, enemy dead mounted steadily.

Gen. Easley Wounded
Reins were slowing the action, though, Gen. MacArthur reported in his daily communique, and a Japanese sniper bullet wounded Brig. Gen. Claudius M. Easley, assistant commander of the 96th division.

Gen. Easley, a colorful Texan, was tramping through front line positions when he was struck. He was the first American general officer to be wounded in this campaign.

Gen. MacArthur announced complete occupation on tiny Pegu Island in the Manila group just northwest of New Guinea, thus eliminating Japanese aerial watchers able to observe operations on the American bombing route to the Philippines. Bras Island also in the Manila group, is being mopped up, MacArthur said.

American fighter planes, bombing and strafing the Ormoc Japanese supply area, sank 30 barges lying with their ramps touching shore, apparently unloaded.

At Valencia, halfway up the road running from Ormoc to the Nipponese bend south of Limon, the Yank army destroyed dozens of trucks in a motor pool.

Elements of the 24th U. S. Infantry division were holding the front of the Limon salient, and closing in west and south of the Japanese spearhead. Elements of the first cavalry (dismounted) were closing in from the east.

Other American units consolidated positions from Mt. Minor to Mt. Mamban, along the crest of the range looking down on the Ormoc road from the east.

Soldier Held To Grand Jury In Theft of Auto

Pvt. Walter Weigand, 20, of Sebring, arrested yesterday in New Philadelphia when he and a younger brother were caught driving a car which had been stolen from Mrs. Harold DeRhodes, 815 Prospect st. Tuesday night, was bound over to the grand jury on a $1,000 bond today by Mayor R. R. Johnson.

Pleading guilty to the theft of the auto, the Sebring soldier, now wanted by military police for being absent without leave, had been brought back to Salem by Chief Ralph Steffer.

The brother was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Waitress Granted Divorce From "Hitlerian Fascist"

CANTON, Nov. 17.—Common Pleas Judge George N. Graham granted a divorce to waitress, Maria Muniz, 35, on the complaint that her husband, Hilario P. Patallo, was "a Hitlerian Fascist sympathizer of the German race, and that he nearly caused her execution by Fascists during the Spanish civil war."

She said her husband turned her over to the Fascists because of her liberal views. Miss Muniz, who uses her maiden name, came to the U. S. after winning a reprieve. Patallo still is in Spain, she said.

"Just like shooting fish in a barrel" was the description applied by 7th Army Air Force bombardiers to a raid on a Jap air base on Iwo Jima when the Yanks picked off enemy planes, as shown above, which had been left on the ground when the Japs were surprised by attacking American forces. Large columns of smoke arise from targets already blasted by bombs.

Brock, Expert On Balkans, Town Hall Speaker Tuesday

Big, blond Ray Brock, foreign correspondent for The New York Times, who will be the Town Hall speaker at the High school auditorium at 8 p. m. Tuesday, has emerged as one of the ace reporters of the war.

He has been abroad longer—more than four consecutive years—than any other correspondent now back in this country. His subject here will be "Crisis in Southeastern Europe," which will deal with the military and political problems of the Balkans.

Brock was born in Dallas, Tex., 31 years ago. His father was a rancher and Ray set out to be an engineer. At Texas A. & M. where he played football and earned the college pay r. Later he wrote sports for Dallas papers, was with International News Service, and was Time magazine's southwestern correspondent.

The war in Spain was at its height in the winter of 1937 when Brock was with Trans-Radio Press. He asked for the assignment to cover it and stayed in Spain until spring of 1938, when he was ordered to France to cover the Czech crisis.

From there he went to Berlin, returning home by way of Sweden and Norway. In California he produced a novel and a play, "All Clear," which was staged by Carmel, Calif., players.

Late in the summer of 1939 he decided to go abroad. After freelancing in Paris, Brock met Walter Duranty (one of the Salem Town Hall speakers) and became his assistant in the North American Newspaper Alliance office there.

It was in Belgrade in September, 1940, that Brock achieved his ambition and became correspondent for The New York Times. Following his "beat" on the Yugoslav revolt, Brock was taken prisoner by the Italians in Dalmatia but was released because the United States was not yet officially at war with the Axis.

An expert on the Balkans and Near East, he has covered Turkey, Persia, Syria, Palestine, Lebanon, the Russian frontier, Cairo and the Big Three conference there.

PHONE STRIKE HITS 3 CITIES; MAY SPREAD

Columbus, Dayton, Toledo Operators Quit In Employment Row

(By Associated Press)
DAYTON, Nov. 17.—A sudden strike of telephone operators tied up long distance service in three Ohio metropolitan areas today and threatened to spread to smaller cities.

Operators affiliated with the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers left their boards here at 7:10 a. m. (EWT) in protest against employment by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. of out-of-town personnel, and shortly afterward operators in Columbus and Toledo walked out in an expression of sympathy.

While local service, maintained by the dial system, was unaffected in all three cities, long distance calls were cut by upward of 50 per cent, spokesmen for Ohio Bell said, and those being completed were put through by make-shift crews made up of operators who refused to quit and personnel sent to switchboards from other departments. Several men sat at the big board in Columbus.

Ralph Marburger, vice president and general manager of Ohio Bell's southwestern area, said the company was endeavoring to maintain service "as well as possible with available personnel."

Military Calls First
All outbound calls were challenged and the subscriber "invited to cancel;" top priority was going to the military.

While a National Labor relations board spokesman said the walkout "appeared to be in convention" of a section of the War Labor Disputes act, Springfield, Plaquemine, Court House and Winchester operators met to decide whether to leave their boards too.

Margit Wagner, regional NLRB director at Cincinnati, said the Labor Disputes act required continuance of contracts through a 30-day "cooling off period."

Miss Jeanette Reedy of Dayton, president of the Southeastern Area council of the federation, disclosed that operators there voted Wednesday night to walk out. A previous announcement said they had affirmed an earlier decision to quit Dec. 3.

Dayton and Columbus are in the heart of the vital industrialized midwest, and the Army Air Forces two important fields—Wright and Patterson—are just outside Dayton.

There was no immediate indication of how the strikes would affect service. Automatic equipment was operating as usual in both cities.

Miss Reedy said the decision to strike today was reached at a secret meeting of union members Wednesday night. Union spokesmen previously had announced that

Girl, 7, Unconscious 50 Days Following Mishap, Recovering

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, Nov. 17.—Little Judith Ann Koch came home yesterday after spending 50 unconscious days at Lakewood hospital.

Susie, a Boston bull terrier, jumped on her lap and licked her face. Her face lighted up for the first time in many weeks as she rumbled the dog's ears and said: "That's my Susie." She couldn't see Susie, however, for Judy is blind.

Sixty-three days ago, seven-year-old Judy ran into the street near her suburban Rocky River home to save a neighbor's white dog from an oncoming automobile.

Judy and the dog were struck by the car. The dog died and Judy spent 50 silent days in the hospital. As blood clots on her brain were absorbed, she awakened gradually. She had been fed through a nostril tube.

Judy talks in fragments. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde G. Koch, believe she knows what she wants to say but her brain cannot control and co-ordinate her thoughts with her tongue.

"We don't know what will happen," her father declared. "We'll go to specialists, of course."

"Judy has returned nearly to normal except her vision," the family doctor said. "She can't interpret images on her retina; that's what is causing her blindness. This is not a surgical case. We're watching and waiting."

Her mother says Judy is "just full of courage. She will mention that she can't see, but that is all she will say about it."

Two Price Control Panels Established

In keeping with the enlarged scope of the price control program and in order to extend additional and improved service to the public, officials of the Salem Rationing board have announced a reorganization of the price control panel.

Dividing the work into two divisions, officials named Lodger Caplan as general chairman of the full panel.

The first group, the food and restaurant price panel, includes: Chairman, Winifred A. Byers; Mrs. John Taylor; George Perrault and Leonard Taylor.

The second division, the automobile, services and consumer goods panel, includes: Chairman, W. R. Guy; Fred Koenreich; John Hochadel; B. N. Maxson and Mrs. H. E. Gieckler.

Officials also announced that the board office would be closed all day Thanksgiving. The hours will be extended on Wednesday, however, to accommodate persons having business with the board next week. Besides being open all day, the office will remain open from 7 to 8 p. m. Wednesday.

Armies Make New Gains In Victory Drive

(By The Associated Press.)

LONDON, Nov. 17.—German lines sagged under twin offensives in the Rhineland today as the United States First army drove forward two miles toward Duren and the Ninth army bagged long lines of prisoners.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army infantry and armor slashed to a point six miles west of Duren, important industrial town 20 miles west of Cologne, despite sleet and rain storms.

Germany's western lines rocked to the thunder of hundreds of guns in the Aachen sector, the smash of new armored columns from the Moselle bridgeheads, the weight of increasing attacks in Holland as the Allies made a supreme bid for victory.

Perhaps 2,000,000 men were arrayed in battle on both sides in the critical test of German staying power.

Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's Ninth army increased the pressure of the attack in its second day north of Aachen, front line dispatches said, captured several more towns and turned back a Tiger tank counter-attack.

A German military commentator late in the afternoon said a break had been made in the German lines near Stolberg, and a dispatch from the front said breaks appeared to have been made at several places.

Long streams of battle-shattered German prisoners lined the roads back to American prison cages.

To the north the British crossed the Zig canal, after clearing out a triangle formed by that channel and the Noord and Wessem canals, and virtually closed up to the Maas river bend on a seven-mile front at Roermond in Holland.

To the south Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., threw armored forces into the Third Army's battle from the bridgeheads near Thionville which were punched as far as eight miles east of Koenigsmaacher.

Tighten Metz Noose
Drawing their net tighter about Germans possibly preparing for a siege stand inside Metz, Third army troops completely surrounded the Verdun fort group just southwest of the city and across the Moselle from the stronghold of Fort Driant. Infantry captured Lorry Le Metz, a mile northwest of the city.

The twin offensive of the First and Ninth armies had deepened the five-to-10 mile wedge in the Siegfried line by at least one to two miles, with the doughboys now fighting within seven miles of Julich and 28 miles from the Rhine.

The First and Ninth were supported in their jump-off attack yesterday by the greatest air fleet ever to go into a single action in direct aid of ground forces.

Nearly 6,000 bombers and fighters blasted at the gateway to the Rhine with 13,000 tons of explosives for five hours yesterday and infantrymen captured hundreds of Germans stunned by the onslaught.

On the Americans' left flank the British Second army in Holland added a 12-mile advance in three days by capturing Wessem, on the

Speaking of Political Prophecy

In the post-mortem held on the accuracy of political opinion polls, little, if anything, has been said about the forecast by the Dunn Survey of Greenwich, Conn., which made one of the most accurate estimates of the lot. And instead of waiting till the last minute, it made a forecast one year before the election that Mr. Roosevelt would win with 490 electoral votes.

This figure was adjusted in mid-October to "more than 500" votes and at the same time the popular vote for Mr. Roosevelt was estimated at 54 per cent. The actual electoral vote proved to be 432, and Mr. Roosevelt's percentage of the popular vote, when the soldier ballots are counted, will be very close to 54 per cent.

The Dunn Survey reached its interesting conclusions by evaluating the importance of bloc voting by federal employees in the various states. It concluded from the same evidence that without a federal employee bloc vote, Thomas E. Dewey would win 35 states, 396 electoral votes and about 60 per cent of the popular vote. In making its predictions, it issued this warning: "In the event of Roosevelt's election, we urge that you require very exacting evidence before accepting New Deal or Republican explanations that foreign policy or the CIO decided the outcome. Should Roosevelt's vote in industrial areas be as large, or larger, than in 1940 it would be important to determine whether it was caused by a labor vote or by a federal employee vote placed in these areas."

The Dunn Survey has contended since 1938 that the New Deal would be unstable as long as it could hold and control the votes of persons whose livelihood depended on its continuation in office. It viewed the bureaucratic vote in 1944 as the successor to the public relief vote of 1936 and 1940 and—for whatever another prediction from the same source may be worth—foresees that the New Deal's program for post-war relief "will be designed to provide the marginal bloc vote needed to win in 1948."

Electoral College Reform

As is customary after presidential elections, proposals for reforming the electoral college are in order. No one denies that it is an obsolete and creaking mechanism designed to serve a purpose no longer believed in by the people; namely, to keep the choice of a chief executive out of their hands.

Beyond that, the electoral college is an open invitation to political skulduggery and has been so employed on several occasions, on the sound premise that the political hand is quicker than the public eye. There even were notions about missing it this year, but they came to nothing. And to clinch the indictment, it is not a popular institution.

Nevertheless, it probably isn't going to be abandoned, or revised. There are two obvious reasons. One is the Democratic south, which likes the electoral college system just the way it is because no matter how badly the Democrats may fare in the country at large they always can carry enough southern states to make a showing in the electoral college.

The other reason is the bi-partisan north, east and west, which would not relish any change that might lead to ultimate abandonment of the electoral college and adoption of a popular vote basis for electing a president. If that happened and there continued to be a solid south, the Democratic party's lopsided majorities in a region where Republicans frequently are outvoted three and four to one would have to be offset in other regions which use a two-party system.

Thus, no matter how obvious may seem to be the need for doing something about the electoral college, it is only remotely possible that anything is going to be done.

Heil Himmler

Heinrich Himmler's chief function as a Nazi functionary has been terrorism, since 1936 as the head of the Gestapo. There is grim justice in the now almost conclusive evidence that he has supplanted Hitler as the head of the German dictatorship.

The ultimate end of Hitler's totalitarian principles of government always was the triumph of terror; Hitler was only the political bait to lure Germany into the trap set by the Himmlers who had mastered the techniques of "discipline."

They were destined to be Germany's ultimate masters. Himmler himself is little more than a symbol; the representative of a class with a common conviction of its right to handle human beings as animals would be handled. The Himmlers are behind the atrocities that will make Germany the most hated and the most feared nation in Europe for the next thousand years. They are behind the hangings just reported in Cologne—hangings of German civilians who dared to differ with official decisions about the war—the mass destruction of civilians in France for failure to cooperate—all the ghastly terrorism that has set back a proud nation into the dark ages.

The Germans heled Hitler and now they have Himmler. The executioner is now become the fuhrer.

How Did They Vote?

There apparently is nothing left undone in the science of fabricating public opinion, except a fool-proof means of cross-checking what voters do at the polls. Only the broad general results are visible the way things are now; the details are missing.

Until it can be known how votes are divided on given issues as between men and women, voters over and below 30 years of age, Republicans and Democrats, unionists and non-unionists and as between persons holding different opinions inside all the various minorities, what happens to public opinion in the voting booth will continue to be guesswork.

This aching void is behind a facetious suggestion that ballots might include a square for voters to indicate their motives. Thus, if the public opinion scitists had the advantage of knowing that out of 30 many million votes cast for president and vice president a certain percentage represented women, that the women's average height was so much, that 644 per cent were housewives living with their husbands and 36.6 were neither housewives nor living with their husbands, they undoubtedly could produce some astonishing conclusions. They could tell us not only what we intended to do, but what we did do, which is what most of us keep trying to discover.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, November 18.

AN ACTIVE day, with much of importance stirring, according to the lunar transits as well as mutual aspects of dominant planets. While the energies and spirits may be highly stimulated, the mental and emotional urges are distinctly dangerous and liable to lead into loss, regrets, sorrows, with business anxieties intimate or romantic associations holding distress or separation. A reaction on health should be guarded against, also treachery, litigation and speculation.

Those whose birthday it is may have a very lively year, with all faculties and forces under high stimuli. But these energies are likely to be expended in unprofitable directions due to erratic impulses, rash mental slants, as well as to treachery, betrayal or designing plans of others. All this may have reactions in the health, and also on the happiness of the domestic circle.

A child born on this day may have initiative and energy, with flashes of brilliant ideas, but these may be squandered by rash or erratic moves, investments, speculations, with unhappy personal reactions.

Sweet Home?

Regimentation is an overworked bogey, but a situation has come up in which it seems proper to rear regimentation's ugly head and scare the daylight out of everybody while there is yet time.

In the latest issue of "Tomorrow's Town," put out by the National Committee on Housing, there is the suggestion by a California architect that the planning of a house is not the business of an amateur (meaning the unimportant creature who is merely going to build, pay for and live in the dwelling) but of a professional. There is the further suggestion that the FHA give preference to professionally designed houses in insuring home loans.

We hope this idea doesn't make any headway. Planning one's own house is, like parenthood, one of the chief reasons for and joys of domesticity—though fewer people achieve it. Those who do usually employ professional help.

But certain creative artists can do their own planning, enjoy it, and do it well. For them we speak.

Can it be that we are coming to the point where a man's home is not his castle unless the turrets and battlements bear the professional's stamp and the Federal Housing Administration's OK? Will the desire for an enclosed back porch become a matter of bureaucratic concern?

If so, let us raise a howl before a new generation comes along to whom the strains of "Home, Sweet Home" will be as meaningless as a jungle chant.

Miss Bretz Is Bride In Church Rites

An open church ceremony at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday in the New Waterford Methodist church united in marriage Miss Madeleine Bretz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Bretz, of New Waterford, to Norman Everett Wilhelm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wilhelm of East Palestine.

Vows were exchanged before a setting of cytharion and Boston ferns and palms lighted by four seven branch candelabra.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Rev. C. R. Strobel of Republic, former New Waterford pastor, with Rev. John L. Clark, pastor of the church, assisting.

Preceding the ceremony a program of piano and vocal music was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morey. Vocal numbers by Mr. Morey were "Because," "Ich Liebe Dich," "Beloved, It Is Morning," and "The Lord's Prayer" (Malotte).

The bride, a granddaughter of Mrs. E. B. Gearhart of E. Fourth st., was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of white duchess satin, made with net yoke edged with a pleated ruffle of net, close-fitting bodice, long pointed sleeves, had a full skirt forming a train. Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was arranged in a Juliet cap of seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and white button poms.

Attending the bride were her sisters, Kathryn as maid of honor and Genevieve as bridesmaid. Their gowns were fashioned of taffeta with cascade of ruffles down the back and a ruffle outlining the sweetheart necklines. The maid of honor wore winter rose and carried an arm bouquet of yellow and rose poms and baby mums.

The bridesmaid's gown was moss green and her bouquet of yellow and bronze poms and baby mums.

Clarence Wilhelm of Canfield served as his brother's best man.

Serving as usherettes were Mary Robinson, Lois Bradford, Greta Lou Hawkins and Betty Lee Myers, wearing floor-length gowns.

A reception was given in the church rooms following the ceremony.

Until the completion of their farm home near New Waterford, the couple will reside at the home of her parents. Mr. Wilhelm is employed in the New Waterford postoffice and her husband as a dairyman.

The all-university average was 1.174; all-sorority average 1.428 and the all-fraternity average 1.190.

The War Today

scheme of varying his pressure on the Germans in order to keep them off balance. He could do this successfully because of his great superiority in manpower and equipment. By hitting 'em here, there and everywhere he sooner or later will find the weak spot he's looking for—that's where he will develop the break-through.

Most observers are keeping a special watch on the northern section of the front—from the shell-shocked Aachen sector up to Arnhem at the tip. It looks now as though Eisenhower might be figuring on crashing through the Aachen sector to Cologne and Düsseldorf on the Rhine, or on turning the German right flank up at Arnhem while exerting pressure below.

There are two prime reasons why the supreme commander may be figuring on letting his left-wing forces carry the ball. For one thing, this flank lies directly opposite the Ruhr—heart of Germany's war industry—and offers the shortest route to Berlin through country which, once across the Rhine, is open and suitable for movement of armored forces.

Then this northern flank lies close to the great port of Antwerp and communications with this supply base are good. This point can't be over-emphasized. A great offensive must have ready access to supplies or else it will run down like an un-wound clock.

The idea that the break may be on the northern front is rather encouraged by the mysterious appearance of Gen. Simpson's will-o-the-wisp U. S. Ninth Army in the line just north of Gen. Hodges' U. S. First Army. The Ninth got into action quickly and the Hitlerites must have had a shock to find it there. They had known, of course, that it was knocking about somewhere, but the manner in which it was spirited across France without disclosing its whereabouts is one of the wonders of the war.

There still are unknown quantities to conjure with. One is the great Allied borne army, which includes the paratroops. This outfit is likely to be dropped behind the enemy somewhere. Then, too, Allied engineers have the habit of preparing equipment for river crossings well in advance of the event. Both these are worth keeping in mind.

'COTTON ED' SMITH DIES AT AGE OF 80

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 — Sen. Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina died today at his home in Lynchburg, his office here was advised.

Word of the 80-year-old senator's death also was received by Edwin A. Halsey, secretary of the senate. Smith, best known as "Cotton Ed," had been backing New Deal leadership of the Democratic party for years and formed an anti-New Deal committee to oppose the fourth term ticket this year.

Smith once said that if he had not been so lazy he could have been as great a man as John C. Calhoun, South Carolina's patron saint. Despite his confessed laziness, however, Smith got himself elected to the senate in 1909 and remained there until his death.

Not even the persuasive voice of President Roosevelt could blast him out. A "purge" target in 1938, Smith put on the campaign of his life, and Gov. Olin D. Johnston's Roosevelt-backed candidacy struck a snag. But Johnston defeated the veteran this year in the Democratic primary.

Smith's entire political career was based on a platform of three planks—white supremacy, a tariff for revenue only and more important, state's rights. He did not let an opportunity pass to emphasize it.

Finland Has New Cabinet In Change

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 17 — J. K. Paasikivi was named prime minister of Finland today in a shakeup of the cabinet.

A veteran peace envoy and former (1918) premier who participated in the negotiations which led to the Moscow-Helsinki armistice, Paasikivi succeeds Erho Castrén as Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim's first minister.

The Finnish radio announced Nov. 11 that Paasikivi had accepted the offer of the position. The Castrén regime had been criticized by Soviet organs for its handling of the Russian-Finnish armistice problems.

The new ministers were named in the 18-men cabinet, including one Communist, Y. Leino. He was appointed to the assistant communications post. C. J. A. Enckell remains foreign minister.

Paasikivi once served for a time as Finnish minister to Moscow.

members at the session merely affirmed a Nov. 3 decision to walk out Dec. 3.

Miss Reedy said Dayton workers received assurance yesterday of co-operation in event of a walkout from "the entire Southwestern area council which has 2,500 members."

The council covers all but the northeastern third of the state. She said previously "sympathy" strikes "might be called" in other Ohio cities, including Cleveland.

The issue involved, Miss Reedy said, is opposition to employment of non-city workers who receive salary plus living expenses.

O. N. Olsen, Ohio Bell commercial manager at Dayton, said there were insufficient operators in Dayton and that expense money had to be provided operators from out-of-town.

Police Gasp As 3 Boys Brandish Machineguns

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17.—Three boys aged 15, 11 and 10 years—created something of a sensation when they strolled, along a Baltimore street, each with a machine gun tucked under his arm, but not for long. A curious policeman questioned the boys and said they told him they took the three guns and a life jacket from an army vehicle on a freight car. They were released in the custody of their parents pending hearings.

G. O. P. Out of Office Temporarily, States Bricker In Address

(By Associated Press)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 17.—The Republican party, says Ohio's Gov. John W. Bricker, defeated Republican vice president nominee, "is not kicked but just temporarily out of office."

Republicans have "the responsibility to fight every inch of the way so that America will be kept the kind of America our boys want to come back to." Bricker told the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women last night. It was his first public address since the Nov. 7 election.

"What we want," declared Bricker, is the maintenance of the two-party system, the recapture of the spirit of private enterprise and readjustment of our tax laws. "I would like to see in America every business man and every laboring man, when we've freed the world from autocracy, rise up and say 'now we're going to free America from bureaucracy.'"

The 21,000,000 persons who voted for the Republican ticket of Thomas E. Dewey and Bricker were described by the Ohioan as "almost half the popular vote" outside the south. He asserted the vote placed "on the Republican party, Republican governors and on Republican members of congress the responsibility of expressing the abuse, the will and the ambitions of that 21,000,000 people."

ARMIES MAKE

Maas below Roermond in Holland, and Buggenum, three miles north of Roermond. The British virtually reached the Maas on a seven-mile front in this sector facing the German border from three to seven miles farther east.

Highlighting the ever-present danger of a fresh offensive sweep around the Germans' northern flank, Allied patrols slipped across the lower Maas between S-Hertogenbosch and Moerdijk. German artillery reacted violently.

Pursued by British units mounted in Kangeroos—armored vehicles converted into troop carriers—the Germans fell back so rapidly in the flat, canal-broken country near Roermond that the Tommies lost contact.

Full Back To River Line

The Germans were reported withdrawing to their defense lines east of the Maas river.

A field dispatch from the Ninth army sector said possibly a dozen German towns were captured yesterday in the first day of its attack near Gellinkirchen while the First army surged eastward from Aachen in a drive that averaged up to two miles in the initial thrust.

The bombs and guns of nearly 6,000 Allied planes, plus a thundering artillery barrage, began the assault which mowed the force of two entire armies on a front hardly 15 miles wide.

Fighting on German soil, and aimed at the heart of Germany's industrial Rhineland with Cologne only 35 miles away, the two armies apparently caught the enemy off-balance while German divisions were preparing an attack on the First army at Aachen.

While the tank-led troops of the First army pushed their breach of the Siegfried line deeper, the Ninth rolled forward through the towns of Immedorf, Floverich, Euchen and Beggenndorf, all east of Gellinkirchen, and representing advances of about a mile.

The onslaught of the First and Ninth armies into Germany was marked by a considerable increase in the German use of flying bombs, a front line dispatch said.

Bridge Is Destroyed By Human Minelayers

(By Associated Press)

The German high command said today that a special command of six navy men had completed destruction of the Moerdijk railway bridge, one of the most important crossings of the Maas river into northern Holland.

Earlier Berlin broadcasts indicated the destruction was carried out by "human minelayers"—swimmers clad in three-ply suits of wool, rubber and canvas who dragged explosives behind them and attached them to the bridge structure.

Several spans of the highway bridge at Moerdijk already had been destroyed by the Germans.

QUESTION SLAYER IN WOMEN'S DEATHS

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—Otto Steve Wilson, 31-year-old janitor, was held incommunicado today in the mutilation slayings of two women while police attempted to determine if he had planned to lure a third woman to the same fate.

Detectors said they would question a woman who was seen chatting with Wilson at a bar shortly after the bodies of the two other women were discovered Wednesday. While talking to the third woman Wilson was handcuffed and arrested by a patrolman.

Capt. Thad Brown, head of the police homicide bureau, said Wilson, discharged navy pharmacist's mate, told him he "didn't know what I might have done to her." Her name was not disclosed.

Wilson's confession, said the authorities, disclosed he choked 26-year-old Virgie Lee Griffin to death Tuesday evening and stayed up all night drinking whisky and mutilating her body with a nine-inch knife. He said he went to see a horror movie starring Boris Karloff the next day then picked up 38-year-old Lillian Johnson in a bar, took her to a hotel room and mutilated her. Wilson, in his confession, said that after he had strangled and cut Mrs. Griffin "a kind of a crase had gotten hold of me." "I don't know just how to explain it," he added. "I sort of got a thrill every time I thought about the murder. All those people in the show were sitting around me and not one of them knew I had killed a person."

"After I got out of the show that sort of kill lust came over me again. I went to a bar and met Mrs. Lillian Johnson and took her to another hotel. We didn't have any trouble at all. I hit her with my fist. Then I cut her up with a razor blade, washed and left."

Drowns In Ohio River

NEW MATAMORAS, Nov. 17.—Heimer Campbell, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell of Eureka, fell from the motor towboat Progress into the Ohio river last night and drowned.

The Progress, owned by the American Barge Lines Co. of Louisville, Ky., was enroute downstream from Pittsburgh at the time.

Speaks To Kiwanians
Successful functioning of the CPA in this war has prevented the inflation of American money which marked every previous war period. Lamar K. Donahy of Youngstown told Kiwanians in his talk on price ceilings and price control at the Thursday noon luncheon in the Memorial building.

Thus far in this war inflation of the American dollar has been slight as compared with that of previous war periods, due to the control of prices by the office of price administration.

Bell Ringing Record

LEICESTER, Eng.—Jill Poole, 15, set a world record in bell ringing when she took part in the ringing of the Cambridge Surprise Maximus at Leicester cathedral. The ringing on 12 bells involved 280 changes and took three hours and 59 minutes to complete.

The youngest ringer ever to take part in such intricate exercises, Miss Poole took up bell ringing when she was 13. She is the daughter of H. J. Poole, secretary of the National Guild of Police Bell Ringers.

'Bo' McMillin, Indiana Coach, Speaker For Dec. 11 Banquet

BOOSTER CLUB PLANS BIGGER, BETTER AFFAIR

Joe M. Kelley Calls Club Meeting To Complete Arrangements

Alvin 'Bo' McMillin, veteran Big Ten coach and member of Indiana's famed Hoosier gridiron outfits, will be the speaker at the annual Salem High school football banquet on Dec. 11 in the Memorial building. Boosters club officials announced today.

Contacted some time ago to speak at the annual dinner, McMillin agreed pending the setting of an agreeable date. Secretary Arthur S. Brian received a telegram from the coach yesterday okaying the date.

Sponsored annually for the members of the football squad, the dinner this year will mark the third such affair given by the Boosters club.

Special Meeting
President Joe Kelley has called a special meeting in the Memorial building for 8 p. m. Friday and urges all club members to be present to complete arrangements for the banquet.

Kelley expects to name committees, set the price, arrange the complete program and discuss other club business at this meeting. Last year the club had Paul Brown, then coach at Ohio State university, as speaker.

Approximately 250 attended the 1943 affair and a crowd at least that large and probably larger is expected Dec. 11.

Pictures of the Salem-East Liverpool game will be shown at the Tuesday meeting. Coach Ben Barrett will comment on the film.

LANDIS RETIRING, IS BASEBALL TALK

Veteran Diamond Head Is Nearly Ready to Resign Because of Illness

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Rumors that Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis was ready to retire were rife today as a group of major league officials met to consider the big league agreement which, among other things, provides for procedure to be taken in event of a vacancy in the office.

For the past several months there have been unconfirmed reports in baseball circles that Landis, who assumed baseball's highest office when the present major league pact was signed on Jan. 12, 1921, was not to be a candidate for re-election when the agreement expires on Jan. 12, 1946. The rumors have increased in hot stove talk since Landis' recent illness, which has confined him to St. Luke's hospital for the last six weeks. He will be 78 years old Nov. 20.

Just Thinking

Williams Harridge, American league president, in announcing today's meeting, said only the officials will "give consideration to the major league agreement which perpetuates the office of baseball commissioner." He added that the recommendations of the joint committee will be submitted for consideration at the annual major league meeting here next month.

The major league pact, as now in force, provides for the procedure to be followed in event of the resignation or death of Landis during his term, or the expiration of his term. Election would be by majority vote of club owners and in event of a deadlock three months after a vacancy, either league could request the "president of the United States" to designate a commissioner.

Other parts of the agreement cover the respective playing territories of the majors, player limits, uniform contracts, waiver prices, and other phases of the game.

BILOXI, Miss. — Kessler Field had to decline a War Fund game with the Second AAF at Abilene, Tex., Oct. 28. Kessler tackles the Fourth Infantry at Fort Benning, Ga., Oct. 29. It would like to meet the Colorado Springs Flyers in a post-season game.

FOUL LINE JUDGE TO BE THING OF BOWLING'S PAST

New Mechanism Approved By ABC To Make Hair-Like Decisions

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 17.—Foul line judges—those silent men who sit up against a wall in bowling alleys and press little buttons when you slide after the black line—are likely to be looking for other jobs after the war. The American Bowling Congress has imposed the death sentence on foul line judges—by approving a "foulicator"—an electric device that registers fouls by means of an electric eye and wall contact plates. Seven similar devices had been presented to the ABC previously but all had faults. The foulicator, however, a special ABC committee decided after watching it in operation, overcame all objections.

Picks Up Leasers

The device is installed on each alley at the foul line and by means of an electric eye, all foot and body fouls are registered. In addition, contact plates, installed on walls and posts, catch the "leaners"—the bowlers who regain their balance by steadying themselves on a wall or post.

The foulicator does not operate until the ball rolls 15 feet down the alley. It also can be set to ignore an intentional or delayed foul.

The foulicator is the joint work of four men, James MacLagan and T. A. Walsh of Chicago and Putnam and Leslie James of Redwood Falls, Minn. They have been working on it for five years.

The ABC has approved installation of the foulicator for all sanctioned league bowling and tournaments.

However, the device isn't expected to be widely manufactured until after the war or until Uncle Sam releases material for production.

You Gotta Think Quick

By STANLEY PALEY Copyright, 1944, NEA Service, Inc.

XXX

That's how the change came about. If anyone had ever told me the day would come when I'd be prepared to give up the material advantages I'd struggled for, I'd have thought he was nuts. And if he'd added that this would come about because of a girl, I'd have been certain he was ripe for a straitjacket. All of which goes to show to what extent a fellow can reverse his slant on life.

And so the following afternoon I drove over to Boggio's new penthouse. It was my first visit there and he was still in the process of getting settled down. I wondered if that was the reason for his haggard look. This having been another one of his sudden unexplained moves.

Boggio wasn't in a talkative mood as he showed me around, so I didn't ask any questions. We wound up in the library with sets of the classics bound in rich Morocco leather.

I didn't have the guts, right then, to tell him he was soon going to have more use for the Criminal Code than for the novel of Jane Austen.

He was about to ease himself into an armchair when he remembered something.

"How about a drink?"

"Okay, Scotch and soda."

He went into the living room, fumbled around, and came back with a tray. For himself he had brought a glass of milk.

"Scotch still bothering you, Virgil?" I inquired.

"What's it to you?"

It wasn't a thing but it didn't cost anything to ask. I shrugged, downed my drink, and poured myself another. For a few moments neither of us spoke. I wasn't exactly afraid, but I didn't know how to start. When someone has owned you for about 10 years, it's hard to tell him you've torn up the claim check. I made some more small talk.

"How come you're all alone?"

"Ginger's shopping. The kid's driving her."

The way he answered I knew something was wrong. Boggio wasn't talkative. But on the other hand he didn't generally use words as if he had to pay a tax on them. It dawned on me that Ginger was still a good-looking girl and that Don was out of knee pants. Maybe his reluctance to quit Boggio's employ wasn't based entirely on financial considerations. But I didn't get a chance to dwell on that idea. Boggio, who had been cleaning his nails with a silver paper knife, looked up at me.

"Well, what is it? You didn't come here to ask about my health?"

It was nice of him to make it easy for me. I took a deep breath.

"I'm quitting you, Virgil. I don't want to have anything more to do with the rackets."

He gave out with an ugly, humorless laugh.

"Another of your moral periods," he said. "Each time they hit you, you want more dough."

For a moment he continued fiddling with his nails, then tossed the knife aside and crashed his fist on the bleached mahogany desk. "Enough is enough, Leo! Don't start provoking me. You signed a contract, didn't you?"

"You've got me wrong, Virgil. I don't want any more of your dough—ever. And what you've already given me I'll return. I've kept my accounts straight and I'll manage somehow."

Now that he saw I was on the level he became livid. He slowly got out of his chair and walked over to me. The noise his hand made as it struck my face was like the crack of a whip. I didn't move and he struck me again and again. Then, panting, he returned to his chair.

I stroked my cheeks. "You shouldn't have done that, Virgil," I said.

He stood up again and began pacing up and down, nervously clutching his hands behind his back. I waited for the inevitable speech and it didn't take long in coming.

The amazing thing about it was the way he switched from an aggressive tone to a whining one. It was a hodge-podge of threats, promises, and appeals. If I knew what was healthy for me I'd think twice before taking a runout powder. And if I was smart enough to come to my senses before it was too late, I wouldn't regret it. He wasn't going to live forever, and some day someone would take over his enterprises. Up to now I'd been the logical heir. But he was getting sick and tired of the trouble he was having with me. If it continued he'd start looking for someone else.

He went on and on, and it was only when he paused to drink some mult that I was able to put in my two cents worth.

"Virgil," I said, "this isn't getting us anywhere. The sooner you realize I'm going to stick by what I said, the better it'll be for both of us."

I might as well have saved my breath. Either he had suddenly become hard of hearing or he was too engrossed in his own oratory to listen.

When a man gets really worked up, he's liable to say much more than he wants to. I learned some interesting facts. Ginger was fed up with him and he knew it. This moving into the penthouse was a desperate attempt to win her back. But it looked as if it wasn't doing much good. And then he had another big headache. Rug was demanding a regular rake-off and Boggio almost regretted the triumphant acquittal I'd obtained.

It was no use trying to argue when Boggio was in this kind of a mood. I stuck it for as long as I could. Then, when he went into the pantry to get some more milk, I edged toward the door. He was still gabbling, good and loud, when I softly slipped out.

Rubber Is Given Burp With Soda Bicarbonate

AKRON, O.—Despite all the current talk about laboratory hocus-pocus, it now comes out that the secret of at least one material that will make things more comfortable in the postwar world is no more mysterious than Grandma's cure for stomach ache.

A new pamphlet on milled sponge rubber reveals that in the B. F. Goodrich plant it's a dose of old reliable bicarbonate of soda, administered during mixing, that, in the heat of vulcanization, causes the myriad tiny "burps" which produce the cellular structure of this material used in gaskets, cushions, bumpers, kneeling pads, auto seats, door seals and so forth. It is explained that this sponge rubber should not be confused with the lighter "foam rubber" which is made directly from latex.
